

- Home
- About
- PR/ Advertising
- Links
- Contact

Search Results for 'the instyler'

The Instyler

When I heard about the Instyler hair gadget, I decided I had to try it to see if it actually worked. This tool, which looks like a curling iron on one side and a bristle brush on the other promises to curl, wave, or straighten hair with ease. Does it deliver? Well...it can, if you know what you're doing.

The idea behind the Instyler makes sense. The rotating barrel delivers heat while the bristles separate hair so the heat delivers evenly throughout. If you want to straighten hair, simply pull hair through the bristles and if you want to flip the ends just wrap it around the barrel! Super simple right? Curling is a little bit trickier because you have to use the same techniques as using a real curling iron, which is having to wrap the hair around the barrel. That's always the problem I have with curling - so that didn't go away. However, if you can master wrapping hair, then the Instyler delivers great results faster.

Another perk about the Instyler is that it delivers results using less heat than traditional styling tools. This is because the bristles separate each hair and allow the heat to be used more efficiently. Plus, you can even use this on damp hair! Perfect for people who are in a hurry. To watch videos and learn more, head over to GetInstyler.com.

Add comment November 16th, 2008

Search

Categories

Archives

Shop Til You Drop

