I-tried-it Tuesday: The InStyler

I'll admit it. When I saw the InStyler on an infomercial one night, I was skeptical. It looked like one of those kooky gadgets that was a little too good to be true. But ladies, I'm here to tell you that thing really works!

Even though I like to do my own hair at home, I'm not necessarily a genius when it comes to using hair tools. The results I get don't look salon-like, but they're good enough. But the InStyler just might keep my hair from looking like an obvious home job. It's got a rotating barrel and a brush that pulls through your hair while you straighten or curl it. Warning: the tool makes a loud buzzing noise when you press it together but for some reason, that didn't annoy me. I was actually entertained by the novelty of it—I'm weird like that.

The bottomline is that my hair looks much sleeker than when I use my regular flat iron. Our trusty interns, Sally and Kat, confirmed this and they see me everyday. Have any of you ever been pleasantly surprised by a seemingly wacky beauty tool?
